OVERVIEW

China National Tea Museum is the only national museum specializing in tea and tea culture in China. Located to the west of the West Lake in Hangzhou, it consists of two branches, one in Shuangfeng and the other in Longjing.

Altogether covering an area of 13,000 square meters, the museum not only specializes in tea research but also offers insights into various tea customs and ceremonies. Tea tasting, training, dining are all available here, making it an ideal venue for academic exchanges, conferences and leisure recreation. It is a tourism complex focusing on tea culture, more than just an exhibition and cultural exchange center of tea in China and the other countries.
